Collection and usage attributes

Guide for use:	Value domain is derived from the Australian Standard Geographic Classification, ABS, Cat. No. 1216.0.
Collection methods:	Preferably agencies should allocate a unique identifier to a household when they apply for assistance, and this identifier should then remain when/if they receive assistance. This enables the matching of waitlist data with assistance data. A household for the purposes of the metadata item is the same as the members under a single tenancy agreement.
Comments:	The coding and order of states/territories is different for the National Health Data Dictionary and the Data Standardisation Project because the Data Standardisation Project uses the order used in the Commonwealth-State Housing Agreement Performance Indicator manuals. This order used in the Data Standardisation Project is different from that used in the ABS Census 1996 Data Dictionary, in which South Australia and Western Australia are reversed (see Establishment—Australian state/territory identifier, code (ASGC 2004) N).
