Specialist Homelessness Services accommodation type and start/end date cluster

Identifying and definitional attributes

Metadata item type: Data Set Specification
METEOR identifier: 689319
Registration status: Homelessness, Standard 10/08/2018
DSS type: Data Element Cluster
Scope: The Specialist Homelessness Services accommodation type and start/end date cluster defines information on the accommodation provided to a client during a collection month and the commencement and cessation dates of supported accommodation.

The cluster collects:

- the type of accommodation (e.g. short term/emergency, medium term/transitional, or long term) the client was provided
- the date the accommodation period commenced (record the date in the format DDMMYYYY)
- the date the accommodation period ceased (record the date in the format DDMMYYYY).

Collection and usage attributes

Guide for use: Record all the accommodation provided to a client during the reporting period (calendar month).
Only one type of accommodation should be recorded per client for each night. If a client is marked down as staying in two different types of accommodation for the same date, it will be recorded as an error.
If a client receives accommodation for the whole collection month, the first day of the month should be recorded as the start date, and the last valid calendar day for that month should be recorded as the end date.
A separate period of accommodation should be recorded if the accommodation type changes during the reporting period — for example, if the client moves from short-term accommodation to long-term accommodation, then two accommodation periods are recorded.

Conditional obligation:

In the Specialist Homelessness Services NMDS, this item is only asked of clients.

DSS specific information:

Clients may have start and end dates for each of the accommodation types provided during the collection month.

Multiple accommodation types, start dates and end dates may be entered. In a month of 31 days, up to 16 accommodation types, and related start dates or end dates are possible. The dates selected should be valid for the collection month (i.e. September the 30th is a valid date, but the 31st is not a valid date).
